danger of acid mouth, the enemy of decay of tiny food particles. The acid attacks the enamel and breaks down the tooth structure. Acid mouth can be controlled by using MAG LAC Tooth Paste night and

"Tea Leaves," a clever little Japanese sketch—part of the Lyceum Program at the Auditorium on Nov. 10th.

West Texas Champions.

She came in like a whirlwind; we heard the grinding of brakes being applied and the release of air as she came to a standstill. Sixteen of Hondo's grid warriors, one coach and a professor, and one loyal supporter boarded the 1:45 west bound for Del Rio.

We reached our destination at 5:40
p. m. Del Rio High met the train.
Some of the warriors went home with friends, the rest made the St. Charles Hotel their headquarters. Dinner was served at Durras' promptly at 6:15 p. m. Every man was in bed at 9:00 p. m., with orders to sleep late the next morning.
At 9:10 a. m. the following morning
the boys had a very heavy breakfast
and took a two hours trip into Mexico;
after that lunch, and to bed. At 2:30
the coach began taping up shoulders, sides, ankles and wrists. Coach delivered his sermon at 3:10 and we set out for the battlefield at Cowboy Park with our souls full of hope and our hearts full of fight, to do justice to our school, to our coach, and to the moral standard of being clean, hard fighters to the last whistle.

Acting Captain Bendele won the toss
and chose to defend the north goal.
Hondo received the ball on her own twenty yard line and returned it ten yards. The ball was then carried to Del Rio's forty-yard line by end runs and line bucks; Hondo was forced to kick. Del Rio returned the ball to Hondo's forty-yard line by bucking
the line, running ends and delayed end runs, where she was forced to kick.
T. Windrow received the ball on Hon-do's fifteen-yard line and returned five yards. Hondo took the ball to Del Rio's twenty-yard line where a line buck, a pass, and an end run failed to gain first down. With eight yards to go Lacy dropped back to kick. A perfect drop-kick netted Hondo three points—the first to score. At the kick off Bendele kicked over Del Rio's goal line. The ball went in play on Del Rio's twenty yard line. Two downs and the whistle for end of first quarter with Del Rio in possession of the ball on her own twenty-five yard line. Score: Hondo 3, Del Rio 0.

The second quarter was almost a repetition of the first, except Del Rio carried the ball to Hondo's twenty-yard line and made a perfect kick.
Quarter ended with Hondo in possession of the ball on her own thirty-yard
line. Score: Hondo 3; Del Rio 3.

Capt. Filleman replaced Lacy at left half, the latter having been knocked out twice in the first half. Lacy's determination gained him a place on left end, relieving Wilson.

The third quarter opened by Hondo's kick-off to Del Rio. The latter received the ball on her own twenty-two yard line and returned five yards.
Tackle Taylor began to demonstrate his ability to solve that fake line buck, which ended by Quarter carrying the ball around end. The first part of this quarter was hotly contested by both teams and the ball remained in mid-field. Del Rio carried the ball to Hondo's twenty-five yard line and attempted a drop-kick which missed by a goodly margin of five feet. Hondo carried the ball from her own twenty-yard line to Del Rio's forty-yard line

where she lost the ball on a fumble.
Del Rio carried the ball to Hondo's thirty yard line where she lost it on a fumble. Hondo carried the ball back to the Wild Cats' forty-yard line where Bendele punted over the goal line.
Ball goes in play on Wild Cats' twenty-yard line. Marion Davis takes the count after the Cats make twelve yards round right. Davis, after two minutes with the coach, bleeding profusely from the nose, determined to fight it out. Applause from the grandstand in appreciation of his nerve and determination. Hondo, weakened for the moment, and the Cats carry the ball to Hondo's own eighteen-yard line with first down. Second down, eight to go. Lacy takes time out. Regains his feet after allotted time but is limping badly. Rooters call for Mr.
Blocker, who has been in the game all this time and is now, with the assistance of Bendele and Filleman, urging their team to fight. Third down, eight to go. The Cats pit themselves against a wall of Hondo, and drop back to kick.
Taylor blocks the kick, but the Cats recover the ball on Hondo's own nine-yard line. They fail to gain around end and the whistle ends the third quarter with the Cats in possession of the ball on Hondo's nine yard line.

Fourth quarter: The Cats pit themselves against Hondo's wall of strength for no gain. Hondo's ball on her own nine-yard line. Blocker comes through the line for twelve yards. Bendele around left end for fifteen yards, Blocker through line for ten. Fille-man round right end for eighteen yards, and so on until the ball is put on the Cats own eight-yard line. Three attempts fail to net again. Quarter
Windrow calls drop-kick formation.
Lacy and the backfield hold a conference. Mr. C. W. Gilliam begins to revive from the stress and strain of the last part of the third, and the first part of this quarter. Lacy drops back to the twenty yard line and makes a perfect drop-kick. The crowd goes wild; so do our rooters—Mr. Gilliam.
Then Del Rio realizes defeat and a hush falls over the stands. Our warriors march up mid-field shaking hands and urging each man to do or die in the next and last two minutes of play.
The Cats, bringing up the rear in silence, arrange to receive the ball.
Bendele kicks off and the Cats are downed in their tracks, by H. Windrow, on their own twenty yard line.
The Cats returned the ball within a few feet of their forty yard line and are forced to kick. T. Windrow returns the ball twenty yards and the whistle ends the game. The Wild Cats gave fifteen for Hondo and burst into tears. The girls in the stands retaliated with fifteen for Hondo, and they do likewise. It was a clean cut hard fought game from start to finish. The old college men who witnessed the game were free in their compliments
to our boys and those of Del Rio.
They claim no one man of Hondo's team stood out as a star above the rest, that it was the wonderful team work of the line and backs, and determination of the team as a whole to win, the quick, clear thinking of our boys, and the assistance of our little Quarterback in out thinking and out generating his opponent. Which, taken as a whole, goes to show that faint heart never won fair—at anything.
Our boys behaved themselves like the little men they really are, and won the respect and admiration of every business man in Del Rio. We were treated most royally, given complimentary tickets to the Lyceum (if that's the way to spell it. I'll ask my teacher about that word tomorrow.) Drinks to the whole team by our rooters (be sure to get the "s" on that.) And an oyster supper. Hoping you will all be out to root for us at our game with Devine on Saturday and our game with Uvalde on the eleventh. I thank you.

A FATAL TRAGEDY

Mrs. Hyo Heyen died at the home of her son, Louis H.
Heyen, residing a few miles
north-east of Hondo Tuesday evening from the effect of burns sustained Monday evening.

In striking a match to light a table lamp the table cloth caught fire, and in the effort to extinguish the flames the lady's clothing caught fire and before help could reach her she had received severe burns from which she died twenty-four hours later.

The deceased was an aged and highly respected lady of the community, she has a large family connection and many friends who are deeply grieved at her sad and untimely death.

This paper hopes to have a formal obituary of this worthy lady for our next issue.

Wedding Bells.

On Tuesday morning, October 25th, Mr. John J. Kraus of San Antonio and Miss M. Elizabeth Seekatz of Riomedina were happily united in the holy bonds of matrimony at St. Louis Catholic Church, Rev. Father Heckmann performing the nuptial ceremony. The attendants were Mr. Anton L. Kraus and Miss Cecile Sultenfuss. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the hospitable home of the lovely bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Seekatz, where the day was pleasantly spent in feasting and celebrating the happy event. The newly-weds will make their future home at San Antonio. We join their many friends in wishing them "Bon Voyage".

VALUE OF "MR. AND MRS." NEWS.

What wonderful thoughts come up when these two abbreviations "Mr. and Mrs." or either of them—are printed in a news item—what intense human interest these portray!

In the Country Weekly Paper, the personals and locals take the one big place in all news items, from the simplest visit to relatives to the larger matters of human life.

"Mr. and Mrs."—the real news items of the universe, the bringer of recollections to the man far from home, who takes his Old Home Paper and reads the item of "Mr. and Mrs." and lets his minds wander back to the days when he knew the "Mr. and Mrs." in knee pants, and, shall we say "short skirts?"

It's the home town paper where the real "Mr. and Mrs." news items occur—and to receive the Home Town Paper week in and week out is to know the intimate happenings of the local world, the doings of "Mr. and Mrs."

"SUBSCRIBE FOR YOUR HOME TOWN PAPER WEEK" is the second week in November—7th to 12th. If you don't take the Home Town Paper, subscribe then. If you do take it, renew your subscription then, for this type of publication is most intimately related to farm and country life betterment—the true friend of more profitable farming begins.—Missouri Clip Sheet.

DR. FREDERIC C. HOWE, one of the country's leading students and writers on economics, sums up an exhaustive study of the agricultural, economic and social life of Denmark with the conclusion "that the prosperity, the culture, the wise legislation, and the co-operative movement are the achievement of the common people." It would be well if the American people could grasp the full significance of that statement. There have been many efforts—most of them well-meant, no doubt—to organize the farmers of America. So far, they have all failed or are in the process of failing because fundamentally they erred in that they have come from leaders, self-appointed or otherwise, who have attempted to "hand organization down to the people." And the people have refused to receive it because—whether justly or not, matters not—they have felt that organization coming to them in such way is not of or for them. When organization springs into existence spontaneously from the ranks of the people, in obedience to the people's needs and in keeping with their ability to manage their organization, then—and not until then—will it be no longer said that "farmers can't organize"; "farmers won't stick." They will have already stuck where they will keep on sticking. But—not till then!

It is by comparison that one gets a true perspective of things. Just now railway employees and their wages are receiving much consideration from many sources. When farmers view railway-employees' wages from the standpoint of their own hours of labor and their income, they lose most of their sympathy for the railroad men's complaints. For instance, Minnesota farmers received from 36 to 40 cents per bushel for corn during July and August just past. During the same period they received from 22 to 26 cents per bushel for oats. Had the farmer allowed himself wages at the rate of 25 cents an hour and charged five per cent for rent of his land it would have cost him, on the basis of average yield and average labor expended, 66 cents to produce a bushel of corn and 74 cents to produce oats. So it will be seen that the farmer received less than 25 cents an hour to produce the staff of life. Meantime, freight engineers received wages of $1.02 an hour and switchmen 72 cents for hauling it. Had the farmer been paid a like compensation as the switchmen received, his corn would have sold for 96 cents per bushel instead of from 36 to 40 and his oats would have brought 97 instead of from 22 to 26 cents. His corn would have had to bring $1.15 per bushel and his oats $1.13 to have afforded him the pay of a freight engineer. Is it any wonder farmers are leaving the farm to break into industrial and commercial pursuits in the cities while the cost of living soars?

A hue and cry is being raised in this country by certain well meaning papers against what they are pleased to term propaganda on the part of munitions and armament manufacturers designed to inflame the public mind against Japan in order that these propagandists may profit by selling war material to the government. To one who saw—and shuddered but had to remain silent at the time—the damnable effects of these same propagandists when directed against another nation that had always been this country's friend, it does not require any labored dissertation to convince that all their fears are well founded. But with all that, Japan is a real menace. We can not afford to shut our eyes to that fact. Seething with an overflowing population that must be decimated or find an outlet, and grown rich and arrogant out of a war that all but enslaved us in debt, Japan but awaits an approving nod from our ancient and hereditary enemy, England, to strike the blow that she hopes will at once break the bonds that circumscribe her, drive us from the Eastern Hemisphere and make her supreme mistress of the Orient. If these same papers will create a sentiment that will compel this country to put a stop to the sale of people in this country of war materials to the people of any other country they will have accomplished something material and tangible towards disarmament. Such a sentiment at the beginning of the word war would have ended it in less than twelve months, would have left us, our young men and spared us the debt under which we are now groaning. Such a sentiment will go farther towards disarmament than any thing else.

Gen. Wingate could not tell the living voice from its RE-CREATION by the NEW EDISON

If you are thinking phonograph for Christmas, give serious thought to General Wingate's letter.

It suggests, doesn't it, that Mr. Edison has made his phonograph a new kind of instrument, —something infinitely finer and more desirable than the ordinary phonograph or talking-machine.

The New Edison has created the new standards by which people judge phonographs and talking-machines today.

To discover those new standards, you must

Hear the marvelous NEW EDISON

You will discover a phonograph that actually gives all the beauties of the original music. You will find an instrumentality that actually brings all the power of the original music to soothe, refresh, and encourage mind and body.

These wonderful results are possible, because the New Edison RE-CREATES music so perfectly that RE-CREATED performance can not be told from original performance. The New Edison is the only phonograph which sustains this test,—the test of direct comparison. This fact alone sets the New Edison apart.

Christmas Concerts

We are now giving special Christmas concerts, to help Christmas shoppers make comparisons, and to reveal to them the new home-music which the New Edison brings. You are cordially invited. Come any time.

GEORGE ALBERT WINGATE
SURROGATE

June 2nd 1921

Mr. Thomas A. Edison,
Orange, New Jersey.

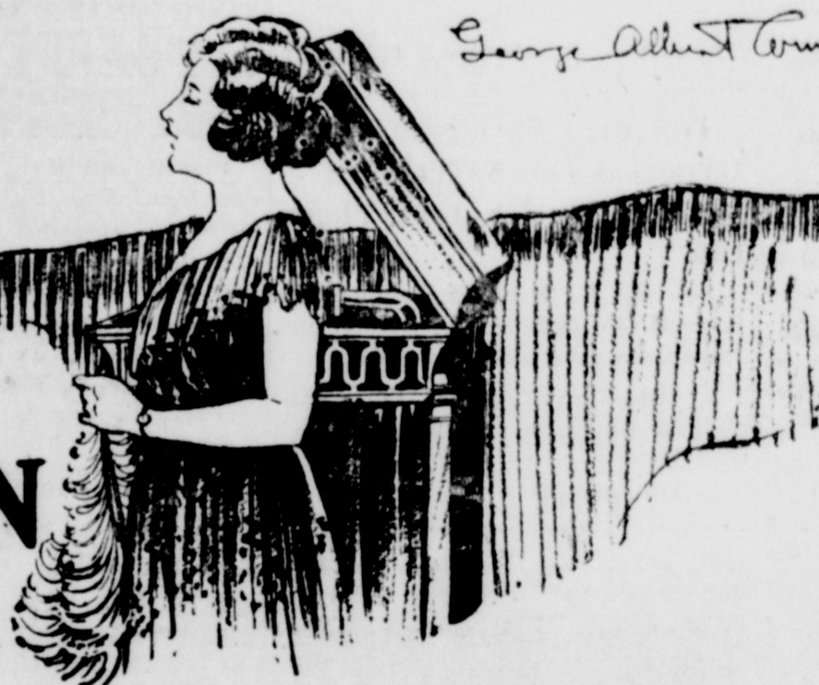

Dear Mr. Edison :

I want to tell you how highly impressed I was by the realism which the New Edison showed in the comparison test which was given before the Reville Post of the American Legion.

The quality, tone, and humanness of Miss Clark's recreated voice were the same as the quality, tone and humanness of Miss Clark's living voice. With my eyes shut, I could not tell one from the other. The same is also true when Mr. Young played in comparison with a Re-Creation of his own piano-playing, -- and when Mr. Philips sang in comparison with the Re-Creation of his own voice.

Very truly yours,

George Albert Wingate

The test General Wingate heard

IN the insert is General Wingate, who commanded the 52nd Field Artillery during the war. The audience, of which he was a part, heard Miss Helen Clark sing in comparison with the RE-CREATION of her voice by the New Edison on May 25th, 1921, in the 2nd Field Artillery Armory, Brooklyn.

Gen. Wingate wrote Mr. Edison, "With my eyes shut, I could not tell one from the other."

Do not think the remarkable New Edison is beyond you. It isn't.

you can have a New Edison delivered to your Christmas tree. Pay no more till next year. Then, budget the balance according to your convenience.

FINE ARTS MIXED QUARTET

Hondo Auditorium Nov. 10th, under auspices of American Legion.

Chester Chandler.....Tenor
Edith Rourke.....Soprano
Elizabeth Bickle.....Contralto
William Brewer.....Baritone

The Fine Arts Mixed Quartet brings to Lyceum a varied program of infinite charm. It is a noteworthy personnel, the members of the organization having had extensive concert and operatic experience. Therefore it is more than a company of good voices—it is an organization of artists who have had wide experience in the operatic field.

Chester Chandler, tenor, was for several seasons a "lead" with the Dunbar "Mikado" company. William Brewer, baritone, was the original "Poo-Bah" with the Dunbar organization. Edith Rourke, soprano, was one of the "Three Little Maids" in the same opera. Miss Bickle is a charming young Chicago artist, whose public work has been largely in the concert field.

Elaborate costuming features the program of the Fine Arts Quartet. Selections from "The Bohemian Girl" will be sung, and also some delightful Gypsy numbers. One of the most attractive features of the entire program, however, will be the Japanese group "Tea Leaves," a clever little Japanese sketch, the work of Richard A. Whiting. This, too, will be done in costume. Solo groups, duets, and trios, will also be used in the program. Musical folks have a rare treat in store and a delightful evening is promised when the "Fine Arts" folks come to town on Nov. 10th.

To Keep Open House.

The American Legion and Red Cross will keep open house at their new club rooms Monday, November 7th, at 7:30, to which the public is cordially invited. Refreshments and music.

Continued
Arthurs bent over Allan, who was half sitting, half lying, in the buggy. His face was sapped and gray in the growing light. Tenderly the three men lifted him out. "Take him straight upstairs," said Arthurs. "It will save moving him again." Both spare rooms in the house were occupied, but Arthurs led the way into Beulah's, and they laid the wounded boy on the white bed.
Arthurs heard Beulah in the hall. "Take off his clothes, Grey," he said, and turned to the doorway. "Where's your mother, Beulah?" he asked in a low voice, closing the bed room door behind him.
"Dressing." The girl looked in his face, and drew back with a little cry. "What's the matter, Uncle Fred? What's wrong?"
"A friend of mine has been hurt, and an old friend of your mother's. She must not see him just now. You will arrange that?"
"Yes. But I must see him—I must help."
Beulah hurried to the room where her mother was rapidly dressing. "A man has been hurt, mother," she said, with suppressed excitement. "We need hot water. Will you start a fire in the range?"
Mary Harris mistook Beulah's emotion for natural sympathy over a suffering creature, and hurried to the kitchen. Mrs. Arthurs was whispering with her husband in the hall, but a moment later joined Mary at the range.
Then Beulah entered the room. The policeman was speaking to Arthurs. "I must go into town now with my prisoner," he was saying. "I will send out a doctor at once, and in the meantime I know you will do everything possible."
Beulah turned her eyes to the bed. A man was lying there, and an old man was sitting beside it. At the second glance she recognized him, but in an instant she had herself under control. She walked with a steady step to the bed and looked for a full minute in her brother's face. Then she looked at her father.
"What have you done to him?" she said.
He threw out his hand feebly. "You do well to ask me that," he said. "I take all the blame." He raised his face slowly until his eyes met hers. They were not the eyes she had known. They were the eyes of a man who had been crushed, who had been powdered between the wheels of fate. The old masterful quality, the old indomitable will that stirred her anger and admiration were gone, and in their place were coils of sorrow and ashes of defeat.
For a moment she held back; then, with arms outstretched, she fell upon her father's breast.
And then he felt his strength return. He drew her to him as all that re-threatening her fine hair as they had loved to do when she was a little child.

She sank to her knees beside him, and at last she looked up in his face. "Forgive me, my father," she whispered.
He kissed her forehead and struggled with his voice. "We all make mistakes, Beulah," he said. "I have made mine this 25 years, and there—there is the price!"
His words turned Beulah's thought to Allan, and the necessity for action brought her to her feet. "We must save him," she cried. "We must, and we will! Is the policeman gone? We must have the best doctors from Calgary." Looking about she found that Grey and Arthurs had left the room. They had slipped out to leave father and child alone with their emotion, but she found them at the front of the house.
She seized the policeman by the arm. "You must get us a doctor—the best doctor in the country," she pleaded. "We will spare nothing!"
"My guest, Miss Harris, Sergeant Grey," said Arthurs, and the policeman deftly converted her grasp into a hand shake.
"Mr. Arthurs has told me the injured man is your brother. He shall want for nothing. And the sooner I go the sooner you will have help."
So saying he rode down to the gate, thanked the cowboy who had been keeping an eye on the prisoner, and the two started off at a smart trot down the trail.
Beulah returned to the house to minister to her brother, but Mrs. Arthurs stopped her on the stairs.
"Your mother knows," she said. "They are both in the room with Allan."
Her first impulse was to rush in and complete the family circle, but some fine sense restrained her. For distraction she plunged into the task of preparing breakfast.
At length they came down. Beulah saw them on the stairs, and knew that the gulf was bridged.
"Allan is better," her mother said, when she saw the girl. "He has asked for you." And the next minute Beulah was on her knees by the white bed, caressing the locks that would fall over the pale forehead.
"How did I get here, Beulah?" he whispered. "How did we all get here? What has happened?"
"You have been hurt, Allan," she said. "You have been badly hurt, but you are going to get well again. When you are stronger we will talk about it, but at present you must lie still and rest."
"Lie still and rest," he repeated. "How good it is to lie still and rest!"
Later in the day the pain in his wound began to give much discomfort, but he was able to swallow some porridge with pure cream, and his breath came easily. His father stayed about the house, coming every little while to look in upon son and daughter, and as Allan's great constitution gave evidence of winning the fight a deep happiness came upon John Harris. He was able to sleep for a short time, and in the afternoon suggested a walk with his wife. Beulah saw that they were arm in arm as they disappeared in the trees by the river.
"I haven't told you all yet," Harris said to her. "I have done even worse than you suppose, but in some way it doesn't seem so bad today. Last night I was in Gethsemane."
It was strange to hear a word suggestive of religion from his lips. Harris had not renounced religion; he had merely been too busy for it. But this word showed that his mind had been traveling back over old tracks.
"And today we are in Olivet," she answered, tenderly. "What matters if—if everything's all right?"
"If only Allan—," he faltered.
"Allan will get well," she said.
"When he could withstand the first shock he will get well. Of course, he must have attention, but he is in the right place for that."
"The Arthurs are wonderful people," he ventured, after a pause. "Mary, they have found something that we missed."
"But we have found it now, John. We are going to take time to live. That is where we made our mistake."
There was another pause, broken only by the rustle of leaves and the rushing of the river.
"Beulah was right," he said, at last. "Beulah is a wonderful girl, and a beautiful."
"She will not be wanting to go back home with us," said the mother.
"So much the better. Mary, Mary, we have no home to go back to!"
She looked at him with a sudden puzzled, half-frightened expression. "No home, John? No home? You don't mean that?"
He nodded and turned his face away. "I said I hadn't told you all," he managed at length. "I sold the farm."
She was sitting on a fallen log, very trim and gray, and small, but she seemed suddenly to become smaller and grayer still.
"Sold the old farm," she repeated, mechanically.
"Yes, I sold the old farm," he said again, as if finding some delight in goading himself with the repetition. "I thought I saw a chance to make a lot of money if only I had some ready cash to turn in my hand, and I sold it. I thought I would be rich and then I would be happy. But they took the money last night. They found out about it some way, and took it, and nearly killed our boy. Mary, you worked hard all your life, and today you have nothing. I brought you to this."

her heart shrank within her. But she saw too, the fullness of it all. She might have upbraided him; she might have returned in part the sorrows he had forced upon her, for he was wounded now and could not strike back. But she rose and stretched her arms toward him.
"You said I had nothing John. You are wrong. I have you. I have everything!"
"And it was to you, beloved, to you, a woman of such great soul, that I could do this thing. . . . But I'm not." He spoke slowly and deliberately, as one having ample time, and with the diction of earlier years. "I should be scouring the valleys with a troop of men, hunting for our money. But I'm not. It seems such a pony thing, it's hardly worth the while—except for the happiness it might bring to you, and Beulah." . . .
When they returned to the house it was almost evening, and they found the doctor from town busy over Allan. "Would have killed nine men out of ten," he told Harris, quite frankly; "but this boy is the tenth. He's badly hurt, but he'll pull through, if we can arrest any infection. His constitution and his clean blood will save him."
Before the doctor left Arthurs inquired if the police had any further details of the crime. Harris appeared to have lost interest in everything except the members of his family.
"Quite a mystery," said the doctor. "I understand one of the robbers was shot, and I will go on up from here to make an examination, as coroner. Tomorrow the police will bring out a jury, and a formal verdict will be returned. A systematic search will also be undertaken to recover the money, as I understand that you"—turning to Harris—"suffered a heavy financial loss in addition to the injury to your son. Of course, it is impossible to say how many took part in the affair, but it is not likely the outlaws numbered more than two, in which case they are both accounted for. The one captured had no money to speak of in his possession, but he may have cached it somewhere, and when he sees the rope before him it will be likely to make him talk. They seem to have a pretty straight case against him. Not only was he captured practically in the act, but they have another important clue. He owns up to his name frankly enough, and it seems the revolver found on the scene of the crime had his initials, 'J. T.'—Jim Travers, cut in the grip. In fact, he admits the revolver is— What's wrong, Miss Harris? Are you ill?"
Beulah's breath had stopped at the mention of Travers' name, and she staggered to a chair. Harris, too, was overcome.
"We knew him down east," Beulah exclaimed, when she had somewhat recovered her composure. "I could not have thought it possible!"
"I didn't think he would have carried it that far," said Harris, at length, speaking very slowly and sadly. "Jim, Jim, you've made a worse mistake than mine."
Mary learned of the disclosure in a few minutes, and followed Beulah upstairs.
"You poor child!" she cried, as she overtook her daughter.
"It's not me," she shot back. "It's Jim. He must be saved, some way. It's impossible to think—I won't think it, no matter what they say! Let them find what they like! . . . But he's in a hole, and we've got to get him out."
The mother shook her head with some recollection of the blindness of love. And yet her own heart refused to accept any idea of guilt on the part of Travers.
"I want to be alone, mother," said Beulah. "I want to be alone, to think. I'm going down by the river."
As she strode rapidly through the paths in the cottonwoods the girl gradually became conscious of one dominating impulse in her maze of emotions. She must see Jim. She must see him at once. She must see him alone. There were things to be said that needed—that admitted—no witness. She knew that. Arthurs or one of the men would willingly ride to town for her, or with her, but this was a task for her alone. They must know nothing until it was over.
Outwardly calm, but inwardly burning with impatience, she returned to the house and went through the form of eating supper. Then she dallied through the evening, giving her attention to Allan until all the household, except her mother, had gone to bed.
"I will watch with Allan tonight," her mother said. "You need rest more than I do. Lie down in my room and try to get some sleep."
Her mother kissed her, and Beulah went to her room. But not to sleep. When silence filled all the house she slipped gently down the stairs, through the front yard, and into the corral. Fortunately her horse had been stabled. She harnessed him with some difficulty in the darkness, and threw herself into the saddle. For 100 yards she walked him; then she drew him off the hard road on to the grass and loosed him into a trot. Half a mile from the house she was swinging at a hard gallop down the dark valley. More than once even the sure-footed ranger almost fell over the treacherous badger holes, but she had learned to ride like the saddle itself, and she merely tightened the rein and urged him faster.
At a crossing her horse almost collided with a boy returning home from some late errand. "Oh, Mr. Boy," she

BACK HOME---A PERSONAL NOTE

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
STATE OF TEXAS

GEO. B. TERRELL, Commissioner
W. T. ADAMS, Chief Clerk

FLETCHER DAVIS, Statistician

Austin, October 22, 1921.

Hon. Geo. B. Terrell,
Commissioner of Agriculture,
Austin, Texas.

Dear Sir and Friend,—Appreciation of the opportunity for service to my state, which you gave me when you retained me in the employment of the Department of Agriculture, together with the very pleasant relations with you and with my associates in the work of the Department which I have enjoyed make it with feelings of deep regret that I tender you herewith my resignation to be effective at the end of the current month, October 31st.

The position which I am compelled to relinquish with so much regret has never paid a sufficient salary to justify my retaining it, but so long as we had the News Bulletin the exceptional opportunities which it afforded me induced me to make the financial sacrifice for the sake of the service I could render. Now that the Legislature has seen fit to discontinue that work and has thus removed the chief incentive for work and the most useful means at my hands for work, I feel that I can no longer afford the sacrifices that I should have to make to retain the position. I, therefore, ask that I be relieved of the duties of the position at the time above specified.

Thanking you most sincerely for the favors you have so generously bestowed upon me and for your uniformly kind and courteous consideration of me at all times, and assuring you of my continued personal friendship and best wishes for the fullest possible measure of success for your administration, I am,

Very truly your friend,

FLETCHER DAVIS,
Statistician.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
STATE OF TEXAS

GEO. B. TERRELL, Commissioner
W. T. ADAMS, Chief Clerk

AUSTIN

October 24, 1921.

Mr. Fletcher Davis,
Austin, Texas.

Dear Sir,—I received your letter this morning tendering your resignation at the close of this month.

I am sorry that you will be unable to remain with the Department any longer. I tried to have the salary raised but failed to get it done. Since the News Bulletin has been discontinued there is not a great deal of work to be done by the Statistician, as he has no means of securing agricultural information and no funds with which to secure such information, therefore there is not enough work in that division to keep any one regularly employed and it is possible that I will not fill the position with anybody else until some future session of the legislature provides the necessary funds with which to properly carry on this work.

I regret very much to lose you from the Department but under the circumstances I feel that you are in some measure justified in making this decision and your resignation will be accepted reluctantly. I feel that your services have been very valuable and wish it were possible to continue you in the work and enlarge the usefulness of that field of work.

Respectfully,

GEO. B. TERRELL,
Commissioner.

The above letters tell their own story.

I am back home—and to stay!

The past seven years of connection with our State Department of Agriculture have been seven wonderful years.

They have been busy, pleasant years of service to our state; years of wonderful opportunities, rich in varied experiences and sweetened by happy associations with splendid people whom I learned to love.

For the opportunities, I shall ever remain grateful to those who gave them to me.

As to the service, I did what I could—and the results must speak for it.

I am happy and contented, with nothing to regret.

It is good to be back at home; back with the type lice and the smell of printer's ink.

And I shall continue to do what I can.

I thank you!

FLETCHER DAVIS.
